

EDUCATION AND OUTREACH INSTRUCTOR

REPORTS TO: Education Programme Manager

POSITION SUMMARY

This is a full-time position ideal for a recent graduate with an academic marine science background, experience with teaching and knowledge of coral reef ecology. The instructor will lead and assist teaching a number of residential courses, including intensive three day courses for local K-12 students, undergraduate courses and citizen science programs at the Little Cayman Research Centre. The instructor will assist in promoting our K-12 and college level programs to ensure they are fully enrolled. The instructor must have the ability to be creative whilst assisting with the development of new interactive course material and activities using new technological upgrades to the station facilities. Good photography skills and social networking skills are required to communicate CCMI's message and achievements.

The position has significant responsibilities and the instructor will often be working with minors, in the field/water, and will be required to work outside normal hours from time to time. The instructor will be responsible for cleaning the classroom and work stations before and after each course. As a member of staff you will contribute to the daily task of running a remote field station. This is a physically demanding position.

The Education and Outreach Instructor reports directly to the Education Programme Manager but at times may assist any member of CCMI's staff.
